

The Mad Hatter

A Douglas College Newsletter

January 26, 1988

Yesterday is the name of a special exhibit featuring images of British Columbia's past through the eyes of its artists. The show, presented by the Douglas College Art Exhibition Advisory Committee to celebrate Heritage Month, will be on display throughout February in the Douglas College Theatre Foyer Gallery and two other New Westminster locations.

Approximately 75 works by more than 40 artists will go on display on February 1 at 6 p.m. in the Theatre Foyer Gallery and Library Foyer, the Gallery in the Park (at Queen's Park) and the New Westminster Public Library Gallery.

An official opening will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Theatre Foyer Gallery. A highlight of the evening will be an appearance by Ernie Poignant, a storyteller and artist who illustrates his works with constantly changing chalk drawings.

"We invite the public to attend the opening," said Helen Rowan, convener of the presentation.

The theme of local heritage attracted artists from around the province, primarily from the Lower Mainland. Artists were invited to submit work in any of several categories, but were limited to three pieces per artist, making for a varied and interesting show.

"The majority of the works are paintings, in oil, acrylics and watercolour," said Rowan, "as well as some photography, and there's even one quilt on display."

The exhibit closes on February 29.

Profile -- JACQUELINE GRESKO: EXPERT OF LOCAL HISTORY

Jacqueline Gresko grew up in New Westminster and first became interested in the community's past while working on a high school project. She is now a specialist on the area's local history but that doesn't mean she has a narrow range of interests.

In fact, after finishing high school she considered studying astronomy, but didn't like the amount of math involved. After her second year in Arts at the University of British Columbia she travelled with her sister for four months in Europe.

Gresko went on to earn a Bachelor's degree in Honours History at U.B.C. then a Master's in Canadian Studies from Carleton University in Ottawa. She has been a Douglas College history instructor since the College opened in 1970, and is currently the Chair of the Arts and Humanities Department.

"You have to see local and regional history in perspective with the rest of Canada and the world," she says. "What I try to do in teaching Canadian History is to give students a horizontal view, where you see B.C. as part of Canada since the time of the fur trade."

As for regional identity, she says, "Some people might not like it but we are also part of the American Pacific Northwest. Our identity flows north and south as well as east and west."

When she travelled in Europe her two favorite places were Lisbon, and Oslo. Like New Westminster, both are port cities. Gresko's fascination with harbours recently came to light again with the publication of Fraser Port: Freightway to the Pacific.

Gresko edited the project which is the first detailed history of a British Columbia harbour operation. She says dozens of Douglas College and Kwantlen College students helped compile archive materials for the book.

As well, Gresko has two other areas in which she has done extensive research. Her Master's thesis and subsequent work has focused on Native Indian missionary schools. She has also published articles about Mary Moody's life in New Westminster from 1859 to 1863.

Mary was the wife of Richard Clement Moody, a Royal Engineer who surveyed the bush that was to become New Westminster. "She enjoyed a position of privilege," Gresko says, "but Mary Moody was a very self-sufficient woman. Her long dress trailed in the mud, the family lived in tents, and she had her seven small children to look after. Yet she also helped other newly-arrived families and young men."

Gresko herself seems very happy with two children: a boy 11 years old and a girl who is 13.

"Things I do with the children keep me quite busy," she says. She mentions Boy Scouts, Girl Guide camp, and soccer, and adds, "Every time your kids join an organization, you join too."

Another part of family life includes running with her husband. "We started running in June," she says. "That's the big event in my life recently -- I won a medal in a five-kilometre fun run in September." She has since participated in several 10-Kilometre events. "I really enjoy it," she says. "It's good relaxation."

As for future projects, Gresko is again looking towards the harbour. Next time she would like to compile an Administrative History of the Port of Vancouver.

Jacqueline Gresko spoke at the Fraser River Harbour Commission's official book-launching reception.

KEN McGLINCHEY ENGLISH SCHOLARSHIP

The Douglas College Foundation is pleased to announce the establishment of the KEN McGLINCHEY ENGLISH SCHOLARSHIP. The family of Ken McGlinchey and the Douglas College English and Communications Department have established a fund to be known as the Ken McGlinchey English Scholarship. The purpose of this fund is to use all or part of the interest earned annually to provide one or more English scholarships for students attending Douglas College.

The scholarship has been established to honour the work of Ken McGlinchey and assist students with a first-class standing in English who are interested in Canadian Literature.

Contributions to the fund can be made directly to the Foundation Office (Room 4800A) or through payroll deductions. For further information please contact Randi Duke at local 4801.

INTRODUCING....

This semester Cathy Daminato has joined us to develop an Alumni Association for Douglas College.

She has a BSc (hons) from Queen's University and a MBA from UBC. She has held previous positions in the public and private sector. Most recently Cathy was a consultant for a medium sized consulting firm. She was also Editor-in-Chief of an internationally circulated newsletter which forecast gold and other metal prices.

The Alumni Association project is especially exciting because of the many benefits it will offer Douglas College graduates.

These will include:

- An Alumni Newsletter
- Reunions and other special events
- Enhanced business contacts through a network of working alumni
- Annual Alumni Association dinner and benefit
- Guidance and counselling for students
- Access to College Library, recreation and other college facilities.

To ensure success of this project, Cathy will require support from Douglas College graduates, student body, faculty, staff and college administration.

If you want to participate in this important timely endeavour please contact Cathy Daminato at local 4812. She is located behind the switchboard in Room 4900A.

NORTHERN TELECOM NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM

Northern Telecom has established a national education program designed to encourage and stimulate increased awareness and understanding of the opportunities associated with information, management and communications technology. The program has a five year commitment with over $500,000 in funding per year. There are several components of the program which may particularly interest faculty. Please contact Randi Duke for further information at local 4801.

BUILDING AIR CIRCULATION - CLASSROOMS

In order to obtain the most effective use of the air circulation system in CLASSROOMS we would like to remind faculty of the following conditions.

1. The air circulation system was designed to function best "WITH CLASSROOM DOORS CLOSED". Open doors are counter-productive to the system.
2. The switch with decal "switch on for air conditioning" must be on to activate the air circulation system."

When film and overhead projectors are being used, it would be desirable to leave on the special bank of lights.
